A Breath of the Woods

Once, in life's Moon of Blossoms,
I was a woodland child,
Shy as a fawn of the forest,
Wild as the winds are wild;

Seeking the haunts of the thrushes,
Answering back their song,
Learning the call of the bluebird
Wafted the glades along;

Listening the cataract's cadence,
Chanted in monotone,
Lilting the tune of the brooklet
Tinkling from stone to stone.

Dreaming in vales of shadow,
Dancing on hills of light,
Drinking from wells of wonder
Nectars of new delight;

Learning the language of flowers,
Making their secrets mine -
Violet, daffodil, daisy,
Orchid and aglantine.
